Jenifir Thies-Thompson, David Thies-Thompson, and Caroline Leonardelli play French music for flute, violin, viola, and harp by Debussy, Saint-Saëns, and Ibert.

Ottawa guitarist Alex Moxon has been a familiar face in the Ottawa music scene for over a decade now. He has spent this time refining his voice as an improviser and composer while performing with a who's who of local and national talent. An up-and-comer on the world jazz stage, his debut record as a leader, Alex Moxon Quartet, has received international radio airplay and stellar reviews. Says Raul De Gama of The Whole Note, "Moxon is a shining example of what true musicality means."

Don Cummings is a glacial geologist who has moonlighted as a Hammond organ player (and occasional drummer) in Ottawa since the early 1990s. An alumnus of the Hammerheads, Bullfrog/Kid Koala and Polaris, Don can often be found enjoying a whiskey sour or making Shelagh and Leo some mapo tofu when not bumping it at the club (or core lab).

Michel Delage's study of percussion in its many forms began in high school and has developed into a diverse full-time career. A graduate of the Jazz Performance program at Humber College, Michel has pursued a wide range of musical genres, including performing traditional Thai and Indonesian music as a member of various gamelan groups in Ottawa and Toronto. As a live performer and session drummer, Michel has played with countless Ottawa and Toronto bands and hosts jazz jams around the city. He performs regularly at the Ottawa Bluesfest, Ottawa Jazz Festival and many venues throughout his home city and across the country.
